

Now Available Peugeot 407 Front Cradle Bushes

The suspension system on the Peugeot 407 has presented a challenge to the independent aftermarket due to the fact that a failure of the bottom bush in the vehicle's wishbone 'cradle' has meant that this whole assembly has had to be replaced.

Not only has this resulted in the job being very expensive to carry out, but the whole cradle had to be discarded even though it was only the bush that was worn. To add insult to injury the assembly is only available from the franchised dealer.

However, First Line is now able to offer a solution for this problem and has introduced the bushes into it's range to enable customers to finally take advantage of this work, and enjoy original equipment quality at aftermarket prices.
